The two concluding sermons of Rev. Edgar Crossland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church will be delivered to-morrow. In the morning the topic will be, "The All Sufficient Grace," and in the evening, "Keeping the Faith." Monday evening a reception will be given the pastor and his wife in the church vestry. A social time will be held and it is expected that several of the ministers in the city will be present. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Attention, everybody! Have you looked up and turned out at the war chest room all the old clothing you can find that will help out the refugees whom the Red Cross is trying to assist? These refugees have been for several years in rags, or with practically no clothes at all. In many countries now, even if clothing could be manufactured and paid for, material is totally lacking. The need is great to a degree that few of us here can possibly realize. Every garment furnished will cover a body which otherwise would lack proper clothing, and each garment furnished will actually prevent suffering. The week's drive ends next Monday night. Give it a rousing finish by a large contribution on that day. A comparatively small amount has been brought in thus far.

The daylight saving scheme will go into effect in Barre to-morrow morning just as in the whole country, barring a few towns which are going to plug along on time of their own. The churches will be the first to recognize the change of time by having their services at the usual time by the set-ahead clocks but actually an hour earlier in the day, the clocks having been set an hour ahead at 2 o'clock. The other events of the day to-morrow will be in conformity with the new time and beginning on Monday morning, the granite manufacturing plants, the stores, the offices and, in fact, all the activities of Barre will be operating on the daylight saving scheme. It should be borne in mind, too, that the railroads change their time also to-morrow morning and that the arrival and departure of trains will be according to the new schedule. The schedule remains in force until Sunday, Oct. 29.

Thursday afternoon Miss Emma Elliott, from Johnson State Normal school, entertained members and friends of the Barre Woman's club in the lobby of Hotel Barre, in the first of a series of musical afternoons. The program consisted of a most comprehensive and interesting talk, with the folk songs of different races as its subject, interspersed with illustrations sung by Miss Elliott, some with and some without accompaniment. Among these were a negro folk song, arranged by the negro composer, Burleigh, entitled, "Deep River," several beautiful Scotch airs, two of which were "Bonnie Charlie" and the original version of "John Anderson, My Joe," from which Burns borrowed the name for his poem; the always pleasing song by Cadman, "I Hear a Lovely Melody," and a most inspiring and little-known French air, "Le Chant des Girondins," which Miss Elliott thinks superior to the "Marseillaise." There were also some Russian, happy Polish and complicated Swiss songs. In closing, Miss Elliott expressed the hope that in America a melting pot, or merging of the different races, might be made by means of their folk songs. There was an interested and appreciative gathering to hear Miss Elliott, who charmed with the knowledge of her subject and her delightful rendering of the songs. She was most ably assisted at the piano by Mrs. Dean H. Perry. Much credit is due Mrs. J. Ward Carver, of the music committee, for the success of the afternoon.

"Over the Top"

When "My Own United States" or Edward Everett Hale's "Man Without a Country" was first played in pictures, the United States government gave to the wonderful lesson in patriotism he was giving the public in his presentation of Philip Nolan.

Barre people will have the opportunity of seeing "The Man Without a Country" in the coming production of "Over the Top," presented in the opera house on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, April 2 and 3. Splendid dramatic talent has been secured to present this appealing and patriotic story.

At the break with Germany in 1918, Jack Mason, a young Washingtonian, after hearing a rousing recruiting meeting, returns to his apartment conscience-stricken that he has not enlisted. He falls to sleep and dreams that he is Philip Nolan, "the man without a country."

After the tragic dream, he awakes, realizing that he is a man with a country and redeems himself by enlisting at once.

After several patriotic and spectacular musical numbers, we find him in a trench on the western front in France and in this scene will be many boys in khaki, who have been in France or the American training camps, which will give it a deeper meaning.

James Bennett will sing in his usual pleasing voice "The Dream of a Soldier Boy" and John Duncan will surely go "over the top" in "Tommy"—adv.
